DEM. COUNTY COMMITTEE

NEW RULES FOR PARTY ORGANIZATION ADOPTED.

Committee Addressed by Congressman Brodbeck and D. C.

Rudisill

The Democratic County Committee met on last Saturday at the Lincoln Way Hotel, formerly the Globe, for the purpose of taking action on the adoption of the new party rules made necessary by the changes in the primary law, providing that County Committee can only be elected at the spring primary or every other year.

Other business for the committee was conference with candidates. A very good attendance of committee members were present and Hon. A. R. Brodbeck Democratic candidate for congress, and D. Calvin Rudisill, Democratic candidate for the Legislature were present and both addressed the meeting.

The first business taken up by County Chairman Hon. D. H. Guise, was the new rules of the party, which had been presented at the previous meeting. A motion prevailed that the rules be adopted section by section and when Rule 5 was under consideration C. W. Bucher of Mt. Joy, moved an amendment to make election of chairman for one year and when Rules 6 and 8 were being considered, Mr. Bucher moved amendments that the appointments of Secretary and the Executive Committee be with the advice and consent of the County Committee. It was explained by S. Miley Miller, Chairman of the committee to draft the rules, that the rules as presented followed those of the Democratic State Committee. The amendments were lost and the rules were adopted section by section and are the rules of the Democratic party in the county when approved by the Executive Committee of the Democratic party of Pennsylvania and are as follows:

RULES.

1. Organization. The representative and authoritative body of the Democratic party of Adams County, Pa., shall consist of one County Committee as may be provided for by statute and such other subordinate body from time to time assembled.

2. Authority. The County Committee of Adams County is hereby authorized and empowered to make such Rules to be operative for the selection and organization of the members thereof, not inconsistent with the Rules of the Democratic State Committee of Pennsylvania and the laws, as shall be necessary for its government and the promotion of the interests of the party; provided, however, that such Rules shall not become effective until and unless approved by the Executive Committee of the Democratic party of Pennsylvania.

3. Representation in County Committee. The Democratic Committee of Adams County shall consist of two representatives from each township, borough and ward where the borough is divided into two or more wards, and shall be selected by the electors of such election district as provided by law, and for each additional 5th Democratic votes over 100, there shall be one additional committeeman, to be determined by the number of votes cast at the last gubernatorial election.

4. Meetings. The Chairman of the Democratic Committee of Adams County shall issue a call each year by personal letter to each committeeman, said letter to be mailed at least five days before the date set for the meeting and by advertisement in one newspaper in the county. This call shall be made so that the committee shall assemble within two weeks after the time of the holding of the fall primary, and within thirty days after the time of the holding of the spring primary.

5. Quorums. In the County Committee and the Executive Committee, a majority of the whole number of the members shall constitute a quorum.

6. Amendments. These Rules may be altered or amended at any time by the Democratic County Committee, provided ten days' notice in writing of the proposed changes shall be given to each member.

Upon motion for a committee on resolutions, Thos. G. Neely of York Springs, Chas. M. Nichols of McLean, Emory J. Plank of Gettysburg, Robert E. Fisher of Berlin and John McInerney of Strasburg were appointed and they reported the following resolutions which were adopted:

RESOLUTIONS.

The Democratic County Committee of Adams County, assembled this 28th day of September, 1914, unanimously resolved:

First. The great prosperity and the remarkable achievements of President Wilson and the National Democratic party are a complete justification of their election and we sincerely believe the same probable that their country demands a continuance of their authority. The only effective manner to accomplish this is for the voters to insure the election of a Democratic United States Senator from Pennsylvania and a Democratic Congressman from this district. A. Mitchell Palmer as a candidate for Senator and A. R. Brodbeck as a candidate for Congress, should receive the hearty support of every voter who believes in the good works of the President. As members of the present Congress they both have continuously and enthusiastically supported Woodrow Wilson and their election will result in the same support in the future. The election of any other candidates will help to destroy the influence and the power

An odd fire took place last week on the farm of the late Samuel Foulk in Huntingdon township and only the prompt work of Norvel Foulk prevented destruction of building. He was threshing when fire broke out in the separator at the inner end of the straw drag. Norvel Foulk was pushing the chaff back from the machine and noticed a spark of flame and the straw in the drag caught on fire. He quickly secured a couple buckets of water from the water wagon and extinguished the flames which were originated when a nail bent over and was struck by a piece of steel in the machine which ignited the straw which was like tinder.

NEW DIRECTORY OF ADAMS COUNTY

Our representatives wear this badge.

The publishers of the old reliable FARM JOURNAL of Philadelphia, are preparing to publish the Illustrated DIRECTORY OF ADAMS COUNTY, giving the name, post-office, rural route, and telephone connection of every farmer, business man, and householder in the county, all arranged alphabetically, and a classified BUSINESS DIRECTORY, including all business houses in the county, arranged under the proper headings.

With the Directory is given a complete ROAD MAP of the county, with every road NUMBERED to show the exact location of each farm, as given in the Directory.

This Directory will contain many interesting PICTURES of well-known farmers and business men of the county, fine farms, thoroughbred stock, churches and public institutions, schools and pupils, etc.

The names and necessary information are being secured by PERSONAL CANVASS of all houses and business places, and of the 3752 farms in the county. This Directory and Road Map are so useful and interesting that from our experience in other countries we can guarantee that the Directory will go into at least TWO THOUSAND HOMES OF ADAMS COUNTY, where it will be constantly used by farmers and business men for the next five years.

The Farm Journal Directories are an immense improvement over directories, containing what most publications do not give. Beside all the usual formation, they give the names, addresses, telephone connection, and other important information about FARMERS, secured by PERSONAL CANVASS from each farmer himself. This canvass of country districts is so costly that most directory publishers cannot afford to make it, and ordinary lists of farmers published are in nearly all cases merely copied from official lists.

The classified BUSINESS DIRECTORY includes every business house in the county, whether in city or country. In other directories the names of houses in cities and large towns only are given.

These features with the ROAD Map, makes the Farm Journal Directory an indispensable hand-book for every live farmer and business man in the county.

If you are not sure that correct information about your farm or business has been given to one of our canvassers, please send it direct to our main office.

CHARGES 13 AND 14

He has opposed by voice and vote the effort to give the Government bureaus and departments power to inquire into various practices of corporations.

He is opposed to arbitration as a means of settlement of industrial disputes.

PROOF

Child labor bills, coal weighing measures and industrial safety propositions have been defeated time and again by Penrose boss ridden Legislatures. A notable instance of this vicious interference of Penrose was in 1903, when a coalition of all the reform forces in the Legislature was effected to pass certain labor measures favored by the United Mine Workers. President at Harrisburg favoring the labor measures were T. D. Nichols, president; Henry Collius, national board member, and then-Secretary John G. Dempsey, of the United Mine Workers, and in spite of the Penrose tools who officiated at Harrisburg the Legislature passed some of the bills.

One was the measure for the weighing of coal. Representatives of the coal roads appeared before Governor Penrypacer and objected to a law which provided for the weighing of coal and paying miners according to weight at the top of the shaft because there was so much bone and rock in it. Animated by a sense of justice, Governor Penrypacer seemed to favor the measure, and is even alleged to have stated that the miners had a right to demand their pay as determined by weight at the top of the shaft—a right equally as great as that exercised by the coal operators in charging the consumer by weight. The position of the Governor at that time was that the argument of the railroads was not logical. The Governor gave the mine workers' representatives the impression that he would sign the bill.

The coal companies, unable to convince the Governor, had one more move to make. They went to Penrose, the man who controlled Penrypacer, and demanded that Penrose have the Governor veto the bill. Penrose put the pressure on Penrypacer, and a few days after the Legislature adjourned the Governor in obedience to the demands of his patron saint, vetoed the bill.

In this mean and cowardly manner hundreds of thousands of dollars were put in the coffers of the corporations by Penrose; taking the same money away from the miners. If you will scan the election returns of the last Presidential election and note the vote totals in that section of the State in which the coal miners have their residence, you will very clearly see how great was the repudiation on the part of the miners of the Penrose Presidential candidate, Mr. Taft.

INDICTMENT OF PENROSE

Palmer presents Proof of the Charges Made

Record of Votes and Act in U. S. Senate Makes the Proof Absolute for the Charges.

CHARGES 13 AND 14

He has opposed by voice and vote the effort to give the Government bureaus and departments power to inquire into various practices of corporations.

He is opposed to arbitration as a means of settlement of industrial disputes.

PROOF

Child labor bills, coal weighing measures and industrial safety propositions have been defeated time and again by Penrose boss ridden Legislatures. A notable instance of this vicious interference of Penrose was in 1903, when a coalition of all the reform forces in the Legislature was effected to pass certain labor measures favored by the United Mine Workers. President at Harrisburg favoring the labor measures were T. D. Nichols, president; Henry Collius, national board member, and then-Secretary John G. Dempsey, of the United Mine Workers, and in spite of the Penrose tools who officiated at Harrisburg the Legislature passed some of the bills.

One was the measure for the weighing of coal. Representatives of the coal roads appeared before Governor Penrypacer and objected to a law which provided for the weighing of coal and paying miners according to weight at the top of the shaft because there was so much bone and rock in it. Animated by a sense of justice, Governor Penrypacer seemed to favor the measure, and is even alleged to have stated that the miners had a right to demand their pay as determined by weight at the top of the shaft—a right equally as great as that exercised by the coal operators in charging the consumer by weight. The position of the Governor at that time was that the argument of the railroads was not logical. The Governor gave the mine workers' representatives the impression that he would sign the bill.

The coal companies, unable to convince the Governor, had one more move to make. They went to Penrose, the man who controlled Penrypacer, and demanded that Penrose have the Governor veto the bill. Penrose put the pressure on Penrypacer, and a few days after the Legislature adjourned the Governor in obedience to the demands of his patron saint, vetoed the bill.

In this mean and cowardly manner hundreds of thousands of dollars were put in the coffers of the corporations by Penrose; taking the same money away from the miners. If you will scan the election returns of the last Presidential election and note the vote totals in that section of the State in which the coal miners have their residence, you will very clearly see how great was the repudiation on the part of the miners of the Penrose Presidential candidate, Mr. Taft.

I do not believe that the miners of this State are content with having a representative in the United States who will put up a show of interest for legislation in their behalf, when beneficial measures are introduced, only to turn about at the sound of the voice of the corporate interests and exert a political influence necessary to kill the proposed legislation before it is enacted into law.

This is only one of a large number of similar instances in which the Senator has quietly, sneakily, yet effectively, thwarted the will of the mine workers in Pennsylvania. He is out and open for the cause represented by laboring men until such time as the demands of the corporations make it necessary for him to either abide their will or suffer embarrassment when the next call for campaign contributions rolls around.

When I published in my first speech in Gettysburg a list of the 50 counts in my indictment of Penrose this one had the effect of bringing forth from his Rip Van Winkle sleep on the Public Utilities Commission that genial old gentleman, former Governor Pennypacker.

Pennypacker appeared as the attorney in this case for Penrose and issued what he was pleased to think was a denial of the charge which I have just made. Well, I want to say this to Judge Pennypacker—who, doubtless, you will remember wrote a book defending the Capitol grafters who went to jail for the most outrageous theft known to Pennsylvania since the establishment of the Commonwealth, and who also said that Pennsylvania had "no ill worthy of mention"—if he is no more successful in defending his new client than he was in his defense of those same Capitol thieves, then Senator Penrose is, indeed, in a sorry plight.

It was not only under Governor Pennypacker that Penrose operated by the aid of a respectable Governor. He did the same thing when he nominated and elected Governor Stuart, Stuart, as Mayor of Philadelphia, had made for himself an enviable record, and it was because of the thefts in the Capitol in the Pennypacker Administration that the Republican party was facing defeat at the polls in 1906, so Penrose hid behind Governor Stuart and had him elected.

In that Administration labor got no further than it had with Judge Pennypacker. With the exception of one bill—every one of the measures designed to aid the cause of labor, to minimize the danger of working in the mines, the addition of mine inspectors—all were passed by the Legislature but vetoed by Governor Stuart under the direct order of Senator Penrose.

Now why did he do this? The answer is very simple. He wished to make you believe that his Legislature controlled body and breeches by him, was working in your interest, and then he tried to make his hand-picked Governor the goat after having ordered him to kill the bills. If you want any further information along this line you can get it from the same man from whom I got mine, and that is the president of your union, John T. Dempsey, who is going to be the State Senator from Lackawanna county, elected as a Democrat, just as sure as I am standing on this platform. I had a talk with Mr. Dempsey about all of these matters in Scranton, the other day, and he absolutely assured me of the facts which I have set forth here and now.

You, all of you, have known Mr. Dempsey for a long time, and you know very well that he is in a position to give accurate information. I do not ask you to take my unsubstantiated word for it—ask Mr. Dempsey—and I would like to have Mr. Pennypacker come forth from his pleasant sleep in the Public Utilities Commission—evidently given to him as a reward for having shut his eyes while Governor—and ask Mr. Dempsey what he knows about these things.

Will you tell us, Mr. Penrose, of a single instance in which you have consistently proved yourself a champion of the causes represented by the Mine Workers in Pennsylvania?

If the lot of the present senator or Senator from Pennsylvania had been cast with a circus there is no doubt that you would have found him doing the straddling act, because some of the straddles which he has achieved on legislation have been mightier, far mightier, than those performed by a genuine circus rider. Now, I will tell you why I say that.

In the first session of the Fifty-ninth Congress, which met in December, 1905, the Railroad Rate bill came up for consideration in the Senate. A number of amendments were sought to be tacked on to the bill by various Senators of the Penrose-Fowler school, who were in the Senate solely for the purpose of protecting the interests of the Standard Oil Company, the railroad and other institutions of the kind.

May 7 an amendment was introduced, not of course, by a Penrose-Fowler Senator, providing that a corporation or person engaged in the transportation of oil or any other commodity, except water or natural or artificial gas, was to be deemed a common carrier, and that it would, therefore, come under the provisions of this bill. While this amendment was affirmed by a vote of 75 to 0, we find Senator Penrose recorded as not voting.

Again on the 9th we find another amendment introduced, providing that it should be unlawful for coal and coke companies to be interested as directors or otherwise in common carriers in interstate commerce. Again we find Senator Penrose "not voting."

These are some of the things I have proved that he did, as far as I have gone with the counts in my indictment of him. And let me tell you, the worst is yet to come.

But Mr. Witess, expand to the jury your course in these matters now.

The people want to know. The tariff bogey is no answer and no hints or insinuations unproved and incapable of proof will divert the minds of the people from the issue made by Penrose's own record.

commerce or foreign commerce to transport its own product or anything manufactured or produced under its authority, except, of course, such articles as might be necessary for the use of such common carriers, and again we find Senator Penrose not voting.

And then again on May 9 an amendment was introduced providing that the Interstate Commerce Commission might make such regulations as would prevent railroads from charging excessive passenger rates, and again the Senator is not voting.

He did not want his railroad friends to think him untrue to them, and so he hoped by not voting at all they would not feel badly and that the people could not point to the fact that he had voted against their interests on account of the fact that he did not vote at all. If that is not a straddle, I don't know what is.

If further legislation regulating railroad rates should become necessary, Mr. Penrose, will you straddle, or will you vote for your friends, the railroads, direct, or will you vote for the interests of the shipper and consumer? Assuming that in the middle of a strenuous campaign you are for the shipper and consumer, how do you explain this straddle in 1905, when you might have done a real service for them?

CHARGE 15.

He has furnished to a law breaking Trust information gained in his capacity as Senator, and has received enormous money contributions from the same Trust.

PROOF

Representative Palmer called attention to the fact that Penrose, under investigation by the Clapp Committee, had evaded testifying directly whether he had furnished the Oil Trust with an advance copy of the Industrial Commission report, declaring he might have sent Archibald a synopsis. Quoting from the report of the Clapp Committee, Palmer read a letter from Archibald, in which Penrose was thanked for his inclosure and assured

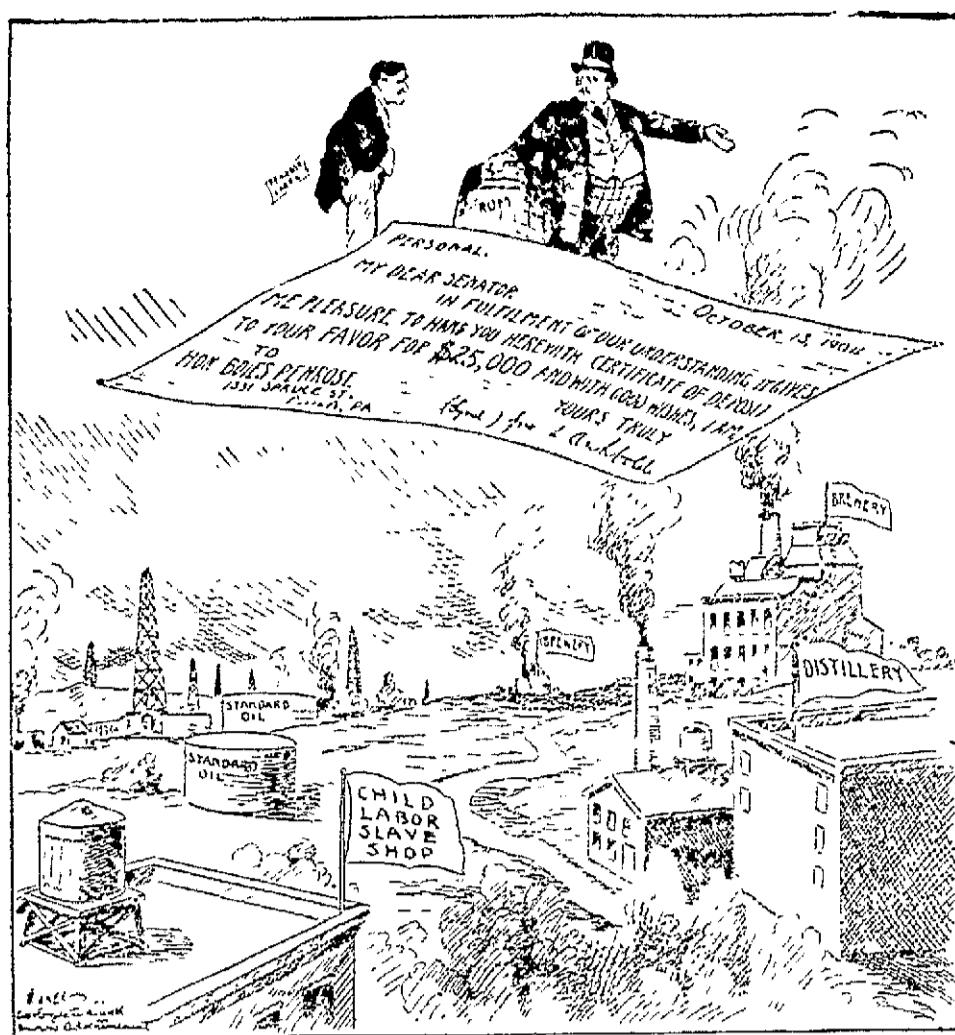

"the report is so fair that we (the Oil Trust) will not undertake to suggest any changes." Clinching the story of Penrose's relations to the trust, the Congressman then read the letter exposing the fact Penrose received $25,000 from the trust through Archibald, as follows:

26 Wall street, New York.

Oct. 13, 1904

Personal.

My Dear Senator:—In fulfillment of our understanding, it gives me pleasure to hand you herewith a certificate of deposit to your favor for $25,000, and with good wishes, I am,

PALMER: CAPABLE. CONSTRUCTIVE.

In this campaign, which, from the circumstances, must necessarily turn upon the record of Boies Penrose in the United States senate and as the political leader of the Republican organization in Pennsylvania, it is fortunate that the opposition to Penrose has in its leading candidate a man so thoroughly equipped and with so splendid a record of constructive service as Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer, the Democratic nominee.

Palmer has not been content with sitting idly by while others framed the policies of government. He has contributed from his splendid intellectual resources to the constructive solution of governmental problems, and he is today recognized as one of those whose judgment is first sought and most seriously considered in the formation of policy and in the framing of measures in congress.

In the making of the Underwood tariff schedules, to him was entrusted the delicate duty of determining the rates of tariff upon metals and their manufactures. He studied the problem thoroughly, mastered its details and presented a schedule which was passed twice in both houses of congress almost without amendment, and with the votes of men of all parties. This is a distinction which few men in the American congress have ever enjoyed.

Turning from the tariff to the cause of industrial justice and progress, he devoted himself to mastering the legal complexities of the child labor question. The result was a measure introduced in the house by Congressman Palmer, and in the senate by Senator Owen, both Democrats, bearing the endorsement of the National Child Labor Association, the Pennsylvania Child Labor Association, and all the leaders of social and industrial reform in the country. Through Mr. Palmer's splendid ability the bill successfully weathered the attacks of selfish interests in the house committee and was favorably reported. It will mark the first genuine nation-wide advance in the direction of curbing the exploitation of little children in industry.

These two legislative achievements in themselves constitute a monument to his service in congress, such as few representatives can show at the close of so brief a term.

But his record is filled with other services to the people. His effective labor in behalf of the white phosphorous match bill to end forever the ravages of phosphorous poisoning in this country; his continuous and energetic efforts for legislation protecting the workers in mines and quarries; his vigorous and intelligent support of fair pay and decent working conditions for government employees; his successful fight for the promotion of the interests of Philadelphia and Pennsylvania through the continuance of improvements in the Delaware and other rivers, and through the establishment of a federal reserve bank; his fearless and forceful advocacy of the cause of organized labor in all its just fights; his leadership of the administration forces against the coastwise shipping trust—all these are but typical of his splendid record as statesman.

In these six years Palmer has accomplished more for the state of Pennsylvania and for the people of the country than Boies Penrose has accomplished in his eighteen years in the United States senate as the leader of the reactionary clique that so long dominated its deliberations. Not a single piece of constructive legislation bears the name of Penrose nor owes its origin to his endeavors.

Upon this contrast the people of Pennsylvania will choose their senator, and there can be little doubt as to where their choice will fall.

This is a good year for politically decent men to make their votes proclaim their decency.

LABOR IS FOR PALMER.

Constituents Palmer has shown clearly and conclusively that Senator Penrose is an arch enemy of labor. The showing does not consist merely of allegations. It is taken from the official records and is true as Hoax with.

Mr. Palmer has shown that Penrose has:

- Opposed labor.
- Detested labor.
- Voted against labor bills.
- Used his influence to enslave the workers of labor in as many cities that reward the progress of labor.

In view of these proved facts, it will be my duty to tell Penrose back to the United States of the great power as the corruption of the Republican party.

For the workingman that votes for me to be voted a seat in the Senate.

Bigelow am has made the walking gods for the gentry.

REMEMBER—

That if Penrose had had his way, the United States would have been at war with Mexico.

That would have cost thousands of lives, millions of money and would have made it impossible for the United States to take advantage of the splendid opportunity opened by the European war.

Compare the plight of any European nation at war—the sorrow, suffering, business paralysis—with the peace and prosperity of the United States.

Then decide whether you are for Wilson and Palmer, or for Penrose.

Penroscism taketh and Penroscism giveth away—to a few.

Charles Weikert, a Well Known Littlestown Citizen Dies Suddenly.

FRANCIS J. AUMEN of York street, a veteran of the Civil War, and for the past ten years a guard on the Gettysburg National Military Park, passed away last Saturday after a brief illness of a week. His health had been failing for some months but he was able to be about at his duties most of the time and was confined to his bed but a week, a paralytic stroke causing death, at age of 70 years, 3 months and 2 days. He was born in Germany while his parents were preparing to sail for America. The family lived in vicinity of Two Taverns and Mr. Aumen had lived in Gettysburg for the past thirty years. He was employed for a number of years with John A. Livers in his implement business and about ten years ago became a guard on the battlefield, being stationed at the High Water Mark. He was a member of Co. D, 98th Penna. Regt., and was a member of Corporal Skelly Post No. 9, G. A. R., and St. Francis Xavier Beneficial Society. The funeral was held on Tuesday morning with requiem high mass by Rev. Fr. Boyle in St. Francis Xavier Church, and interment in the Catholic Cemetery with military honors. He leaves six children, Mrs. Joseph Eckenrode, Mrs. Edward Stahle, Mrs. Mervin Crouse, and James B. Aumen, of Gettysburg; William S. Aumen and Frank Aumen of Baltimore. Five other children are dead. He was about 65 years of age. Mr. Weikert was taken sick earlier in the week with indigestion but had apparently recovered and on Friday evening was about the town as usual. He showed no sign of sickness Saturday morning and was to all appearances in his usual health at the dinner table. Suddenly his head dropped forward and his wife went to his side, only to find that death had come instantly and without warning. For several years Mr. Weikert was a member of the firm of Weikert &amp; Fink who conducted the warehouse at Littlestown, but for a long time he had been living retired at his home. He leaves his wife, who before marriage was Miss Mary Fink, of Baltimore. They have no children and both of his sisters are dead. The funeral was held on Tuesday, his pastor, Rev. J. J. Still conducting the services with interment in Mt. Carmel Cemetery, Littlestown.

He was a native of Westminster, one of nine children. Twenty-six years ago he came to Gettysburg, being employed in the butchering business of Simon J. Codori, and later with Wm. F. Codori, and Emory Forrest. He retired from his work last April. He was a devoted member of the Methodist Church, and leader of the choir ever since he lived here. He was a musician of ability and belonged to the band of this place for years. He was married to Miss Georgiana Cassell of Westminster, Md., who survives with one daughter, Mrs. Albert Z. Orphanage Needs Cottage.

The Hoffman Orphanage, in Mt. Joy township, contemplates the erection of an additional cottage if funds can be raised.

During the past year the number who were rejected because of lack of room was large enough to fill an additional cottage. At a meeting of the board of directors the number of inmates was reported to be 28. One application for admission was acted on favorably at the meeting, three being held under advisement.

The offering received from September 1913, to September 1914, was $3,800. The receipts from the anniversary, July 23, amounted to $360. The expenses of maintenance for the year were $3,027. The improvements included the building of a sanitary cow barn, the betterment of some of the farm buildings, the macadamizing of the driveways and the enhancing of the fertility of the farm.

Plans were adopted for the building of a laundry as an addition to the pumping station and power house.

Some of the funds for equipping the laundry are already on hand.

$1,718.50 Paid in Bounties

Adams county paid out in bounties on noxious animals and birds from Sept. 1 to Sept. 15, the sum of $1,718.50.

The greater part of this sum was paid out in small sums so that Clerk of the Commissioners Geo. W. Baker and County Treasurer Geo. E. Spangler had fifteen busy days in the making out of hundreds of vouchers and payment of them. The county will not get back the money so paid out until the next State Legislature has made an appropriation and the claims passed upon by the auditor general's department at Harrisburg and it may be a year before this is accomplished.

of the President and to that extent be detrimental to the country.

Second. Vance McCormick and the Democratic State ticket should be elected if we are to have a general house cleaning in the offices of the State Capitol, and a discontinuance of the extravagant, wasteful and partisan administration of our State affairs, especially in the making of State roads and the conduct of the Highway Department.

Third. We beseech the election of D. C. Rudisill to the State Legislature as a capable and efficient candidate and as the choice of the Democratic primaries fairly conducted.

While the resolutions were under consideration the County Committee was addressed by Congressman Brodbeck, who said that he was glad to be with the Democratic County Committee, that he had been kept busy in Congress and had not been able to see the people as he would like to have done and would not be able as long as Congress was in session. He referred to the fact that when he had addressed them three months ago the party was receiving congratulations for having been true to party pledges in the enactment of new laws as promised in the platform, now a world war was faced with its complications and the people of America would be short of doing their duty if they did not uphold President Wilson in the course he has followed and through watchful waiting kept this country out of a war and the people should go to the polls as Americans and not as politicians and give President Wilson the vote of confidence he is entitled to.

The November election presents to the American an issue of upholding

President Col George Harvey in October North American Review

analyzed what President Wilson accomplished and presents the following forceful and unanswerable conclusion:

Mr. Wilson as President has just filled the great expectations and realized the high hopes of those whose faith was strong in his intellectual and moral attributes; that in all large essentials he has, indeed, kept faith with his conscience and the people, and therefore, he richly deserves

the vote of confidence and gratitude which patriotic citizens cannot withhold from him without deprecating

the value to the Commonwealth of true public service.

His hands should be strengthened by a vote of confidence not weakened by seeming division. Now more than ever before, or perhaps ever again, it benevolence our country to stand behind its leader united before the world.

Whatever of disaffection may exist in the Democratic Party, whatever of partisan feeling among Republicans, whatever of discontent among Progressives, must be brushed aside for the time if the greatest glory is to be won for the nation and for democracy in achieving the goal of all mankind—the disarmament of the world.

The choice of State and municipal officers may well, as ever, be based upon local considerations, but in the election of Congressmen citizens should realize the gravity of the responsibility which they must face at the polls on Nov. 3. These facts seem both obvious and certain: They can not return an opposition Congress without repudiating an Administration which has served them faithfully and well; without exalting blatant dema-gogy over quiet efficiency as possessing popular appeal; without testifying lack of appreciation of a President who has done not merely his own best,

but better than any other since Lincoln; without evincing a preference for Government given to special privilege over Government dedicated to service of the whole people; without impeding the progress of true democracy through enlightenment and resolution; without inviting a return from sober but steady advancement to the old, hateful and utterly futile striving between the extremes of radicalism and Bourbonism; and finally, without seriously impairing the effectiveness of their own Chief Magistrate's patient and noble endeavors in the cause of civilization and humanity through re-establishment of peace among the distracted nations of the earth.

Our appeal is to all good citizens—

first, to register without fail, secondly,

to vote, not as partisans, but as patriots;

and, finally, to uphold the President who has kept the faith among friends and among men.

A Pertinent Letter.

The W. C. T. U. recently addressed a letter to Judge Swope and he replied. His answer has been read to a number of hotel proprietors of the city. The letter of Judge Swope is as follows:

Gettysburg, Pa.,

Sept. 11th, 1914.

My dear Ladies:

A since received my answering letter of Sept. 2d at one.

I am sorry the condition of affairs in your town called out this communicable.

Yours and I send a order of general information in the country,

I am sorry to close their letter in this manner. Any word that commendedly distinguishes one or another on a certain occasion, or on a certain cause for which he is to be commended.

You are hereby authorized to read the letter to all your friends.

I am most respectfully yours,

S. MC SWOPE,

Judge.

Register and Recorder Appointed.

Recorder T. B. Borchheimer appointed Charles W. Gardner of York Springs, Recaller of Adams County, to fill the unexpired term of the late Emanuel H. Borchheimer. Mr. Gardner will serve until Jan. 1, 1915. Mrs. Borchheimer, widow of the late register and recorder asked for the appointment,

but it is said that only a qualified elector could be appointed. Jacob A. Appler who has been Mr. Borchheimer's deputy was suggested for the position in a way that the widow might receive some benefit. Mr. Gardner is a native of Latimore Township and has conducted a store in York Springs for a number of years and was the Republican nominee for the office, withdrawing when the choice of Democratic nominee fell on Mr. Borchheimer.

Queer Fish.

Which fish have the power of floating and swimming back downward? This peculiar property is possessed only by the sturgeon and the tetronot, two allied forms of tropical fishes which are popularly known as globe-fish. The tetronot is also found off the coasts of Cornwall and Ireland. The faculty is due to the fact that the skin on the gills and fins of these fishes is much looser than it is on the back, and they have the power to inflate this loose skin by swallowing air through the gills. This of course enables them to turn over at will, and, although the great French naturalist Cuvier did not believe that when in this position they could swim as they pleased, Darwin corrected him and proved that they could swim both forward and backward in this position.

It is of course well known that the shark and the dogfish, owing to the peculiar position of the underjaw, are obliged to turn on their backs before they can seize their prey, and while in this position they are able to swim for a very considerable distance. This, however, is done by the muscular force of the fins and tail and not through any special apparatus, such as the globe-fish possesses—St. James' Gazette.

The Cupboard Was Bare.

The late Dr. Masters, who was formerly a missionary in Canton, China, afterward lived in Berkeley, Cal. His friend and fellow missionary, Dr. Boone, returning on furlough, was expected to arrive in San Francisco on a certain day. Dr. Masters crossed the bay to the city, he meant to meet Dr. Boone and his party, and, after spending the day in sightseeing, to take them to dinner at a well known restaurant.

The steamer, however, had reached port earlier than had been expected and when Dr. Masters got to the dock his friends had left. He made inquiries at the principal hotels, but could not find them. In order to notify his family in Berkeley of the necessary change in plans, Dr. Masters sent them a telegram. Here is the somewhat damaged message that Mrs. Masters finally read:

"Can't find the boues. Will come home to dinner."—Youth's Companion

Atavism in Dogs.

Dogs, probably the earliest of domesticated animals, when transferred to a tropical country, such as central Africa, lose in a few generations most of the characteristics they have acquired in Europe and revert more and more to the type of the jackal and the wolf. Then their ears, whatever their breed, tend to become pointed, their coats turn sandy or rufous and their bark becomes a howl. Some attempt has been made to show that this is the result of disease and resembles the effect of malaria on the human constitution. Yet the Egyptian dog of pharaonic times possessed, as is seen by the monuments, these very characteristics, and as he was certainly domesticated before the European animal it is probable that these are original features of the race.—New York Sun.

English Schoolboy "Howlers."

The following answers were given in an examination in an English school:

"James the First claimed the throne of England through his grandmother because he had no father."

"Monarchy is the state in which a man has but one wife."

"Joan of Arc was the wife of Noah."

"Julius Caesar had a cadaverous appetite, and before he died he ate two brutes."

"In the London parks the law of gravity is twelve miles an hour."

"Gastronomy is the study of the stars and heavenly lights."

"Quinine is the bark of a tree; canine is the bark of a dog."

"The Mediterranean and the Red sea are connected by the Sewage canal."—London Globe.

Mouth of a Whale.

The whale rarely, if ever, swallows anything larger than a herring. All the head is of enormous size, from one-quarter to one-third the length of the body, and the mouth fifteen to twenty feet long and six to eight feet wide. The opening of the gullet is not larger than a man's fist.

Sweet Oil.

"Gertie" said a mother to her five-year-old daughter, "there's a dime. Run down to the drug store and get me a dime of sweet oil."

Gertie started down the street, but her mother called her back. "Don't go so fast, Gertie." And Gertie said so now.

Starred Home.

"I'm afraid we may not have to go to the circus next," said Mrs. Garrison to her husband the other evening.

With a look of astonishment he replied: "I'm not here to tell you. We can't speak for you!"—National Monthly.

Heresy.

This information is gleaned from old stuff: "The artist of today is turning the same somersaults his great grandfather did in the little circus of yesterday." Seems remarkable that somersaults are hereditary.—Tele-Blade.

The Limit.

Gabe—They tell me that Blank is an awful crouch. Steve—He sure is. He is the kind of fellow who blames his fate because it needs a shave.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Doubt of any sort cannot be removed except by action.—Goethe.

Love of Gossip.

One of the chief characteristics of the human race is gossippiness, not so much about things and places and ideas as about each other. Every proper person is a bit of gossip, and the accomplished scandal monger is always welcome, provided, of course, his scandal is about others. You can test this at any time by considering who are the people you like best to meet and who are always surrounded by the greatest number of idle acquaintances. Invariably you must be forced to the conclusion they are those who have made a business of acquiring information about others and retailing their knowledge in various dressings. This love of gossip is further revealed in the kind of books which claim the widest appreciation. You will find that these books are not poetry, drama, science or philosophy. They are novels, memoirs, diaries, intimate histories, recollections, letters—all of them essential gossip (and sometimes scandal) appealing by their power to attract the gossipping sense which exists in all of us.—T. P.'s London Weekly.

How Kaffirs Work.

What "working like a nigger"—that is, a negro in South Africa—really means has been explained by one who has seen this wonder. He says that the phrase is one of the silliest and most inexact ever coined. "A gang of Kaffirs," he said, "were at work. They were loading rails on a truck, and they did it as though they were burying their dead. At the head of the gang walked a sort of chief chattering the most lugubrious dirge ever heard. At a crawling pace he led his men to the rails. Then came a long pause. This was to enable the singing head man to finish the first wail. When the Kaffirs got tired of waiting they bent down and picked up the rail, their movements keeping time with the funeral march. When at last the rail was hoisted on the men's shoulders the singer changed the measure to a chant of triumph. As a matter of fact two dock laborers could easily have done all the work that was done by these eight negroes"—Indianapolis News.

Hancock and Gwinnett.

Probably John Hancock is the best known signer of the Declaration of Independence. That is because that patriot was not ignorant of the value of advertising. One has to stand some distance from a framed copy of the Declaration to be unable to read that name, which has passed into our language as a synonym for "signature." There are many signatories of the Declaration who are remembered, many who are forgotten, but Button Gwinnett lingers in our memory. It is not altogether easy to imagine a man named Button by his parents as a patriot and a man of influence. His name was enough to single him out in that sober company. But his fame rests secure on something else. History takes account of men for various reasons, but Button is important because—he was apparently anxious about signing his name. His autographs are more valuable today than Hancock's because so few of them are in existence. Perhaps it was hard work for Button to sign his name.—American Boy.
